3/3/2020 · Empirical evidence suggests significant gender differences in the total productivity and impact of academic careers across science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) fields. Paradoxically, the increase in the number of women academics over the past 60 years has increased these gender differences. Yet, we find that men and women publish a comparable number of papers ...

In this paper, we propose an invertible denoising network, InvDN, to resolve the above difficulties. Unlike previous invertible models, two different latent variables are involved; one incorporates noise and high-frequency clean contents while the other only encodes the clean part. During the forward pass, InvDN transforms the input image to
